

WORD PROMISES ARE NOT EMOTION-BASED 2020-11-1

I said in My Word that I am looking to and fro throughout this world, trying to find those on whose behalf I can demonstrate My strength. My desire truly is to do that. Some would say, 'But that's an Old Testament prophecy; it's not relevant today.' But I would have you know, there is more relevance in the Old Testament than what many of My children identify.

I am still looking throughout this world to find those through whom I can demonstrate My strength, My glory, My power, My anointing, My love, My mercy, My grace – all that I am. If you will continue to press into Me and not be focused on what you feel, you will see Me demonstrate Myself through you.

Too many of My children get caught up on looking for some kind of feeling to identify that I am working in them, to confirm that I am moving in their lives. But I say unto you, do not base My move in your life on what you feel. Base it on what I have promised to do in My Word. For if I have promised it in My Word and you do your part, I will move. I will move in you.

As you grow and mature in Me, I will be able to demonstrate Myself through you in greater and greater measure. I say this to you because of how far you have come in Me and I encourage you, don't stop. Do not stop because you are getting closer and closer to seeing Me move through you. And when I do move through you, do not always look for an emotional response on your part, a feeling that I have moved through you. I want you to be at a place in Me to where, when I move through you, there will times you don't feel anything. And it's because of the closeness of our fellowship. I will move through you. You will rejoice in Me and great things will be accomplished in this world, says the Lord.
