

Turn the Aching Heart Over to God (PD2201120C – Nov 20, 2011)

I'm hearing something about mothers. An aching heart. God wants you to know that His heart is aching far more than yours, but not only because of the child, but also because you have been refusing to truly turn that child over to Him. Too many times you have asked, "What can I do? What can I do?" God wants you to know the best thing that you can do is to pray and to keep living as Christ before that child.

That ache that's in your heart, it is there because you feel that you haven't been able to come up with a solution. God wants you to know that you will never, in your entire life, come up with a solution as long as you keep approaching it this way and failing to recognize that God has already given you the solution. Cast the care of it over onto Him and rejoice in the Lord always and again I say rejoice.

Just as you do not know where that child is right this very moment – you may think you know, but you don't know exactly where that child is – God says, I do. I know where that child is and I know how to touch that child's life. God is saying, "Please leave it to Me. Keep praying, keep worshiping, keep praising Me and refuse to pick up the shackles of that situation and that inner pain that comes along with it. Know that I am doing everything I can. Your child is far more aware of Me than what that child is letting on. Don't let what you see discourage you any longer. Keep praising Me for the work that I am doing in that child's life. Remember, the joy of the Lord is your strength.
