

God is Not Bound by a Clock (PD240609 – June 9, 2024)

You measure time by the ticking of a clock, but I am not bound by the ticking of your clock. I exist in a realm where there are no clocks. Clocks do not govern what happens in My realm. Many of you have prayed and prayed and prayed for this to happen and for that to happen, and you're not seeing results. As a result of that, you feel like giving up, you wonder, "What's the use?" But I said in My Word, do not become weary in well doing.

I exist outside the realm of your time. I know the beginning from the end, and I know everything that happens in-between. Your minds cannot comprehend this. But from where I sit, I already see the answers to your prayers. I already see a move of Mine having taking place. You don't understand this, and I would say unto you, don't even try to understand it. Because in the world that is governed by a ticking clock, you cannot comprehend it.

I want you to know that I move when you pray according to My Will. This is a promise in My Word. I have not neglected you. I have not tuned you out. I hear you. I listen to you. I know what concerns you and I know how to move to bring about answers to your concerns. But you have to trust Me. Trust Me in knowing that I truly understand what is best and that I truly understand what to do and when to do it.

Do not become impatient. Continue standing in faith. Continue believing. But I also remind you that your prayers will not change the will of another person. I will not intervene and change another person's will. I honor the choices of people, lost or saved. But I am moving and the more that you pray, especially for your lost family members and friends, please know I am moving and I am doing everything I can. And there are times when they have recognized that I am doing something, but they ignore it or they never tell anybody, but yet inside they know that something is going on.

Do not give up. Continue to pray. Do not let the circumstances that you see in your government or within the world dictate to you whether or not you pray or whether or not you will believe I am moving, because I am moving. So know this, I hear you, I know your heart, I hear your prayers, and I am moving. Stand in faith and rejoice in this knowledge and do not neglect your prayers and do not cease that which is having an impact. Do not become weary in well doing. I am moving, says the Lord.